

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention provides a digital watermark embedding method that is a method of embedding a digital watermark, which is generated according to specific rules, in contents comprising digital data, and sets an end position of the embedded watermark in the contents before an end of the contents.